The Men are Returning to work at East St. Louis Under Military Protection.

A Prowling Striker Shot at by a Sentry ---How Trains Run There To-day.

ALL O. K.

The Southwestern Roads on Their Feet Again.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—The whole force of strikers of the St. Louis transfer company, confident of protection by the militia from molestation, have returned to their old places and scores of wagons, together with private trucks and other vehicles, this morning are hauling freight to the various depots of the railroads centering in East St. Louis. The force of switch and yardmen who returned to work yesterday was increased this morning. Most of the roads now have full crews of switchmen and yardmen and it is expected in a few days the resumption of operations by a large majority of the roads will be complete. Yesterday the bridge company had not been able to secure a sufficient number of men to handle all freight that the roads were offering, but to-day several more men resumed their old positions, and the company is doing a business almost as large as it was before the strike. In the yards across the river switch engines have been running all morning, making up freight trains, two of which have been sent out by the Burlington road without any interference by the strikers. The Wabash has sent out one train and those being made up in other yards will soon follow. No disturbances occured during last night or this morning beyond the firing of a shot about 2 o'clock this morning in the Indianapolis and St. Louis yards by a sentry at a man crawling along the ground between two freight trains and would not obey the order to halt. The shot did not take effect and the man escaped.

GOULD TO BE BOYCOTTED.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Regarding the threatened boycott of Jay Gould by the Central labor union, Robert Blizzard, the labor agitator said:

"John Brown's death was the first death in the rebellion, so the death of those innocent people in St Louis are the first in the new rebellion which is sure to come. Negro slavery had to go after John Brown died. White slavery has to go, and go it will. We won't burn down Gould's house, for labor built it. We must build up rather than destroy, but the boycott is a weapon more effective than fire, and we shall see if Gould can withstand it. The strikers are going to be well supported by us."

JAY GOULD TALKS.

Jay Gould was asked if he had discovered in what way the members of the Central Labor union proposed to boycott him. He replied that he had not and confessed he was rather curious to know. He added he could not see by what process of reasoning, any one could hold him responsible for the strike at East St. Louis and its results: "I have no property on that side of the river," he said, "no interest in any and no part in the management of any roads centering there."

A WOUNDED STRIKER DIES.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—James Schollard, who was wounded in Friday's shooting, died last night in the St. Louis hospital. Three other persons, wounded Friday, are not expected to live.

The Chicago Tribune estimates that the strike has cost the Gould lines $2,200,000 in gross revenue, $300,000 in damage in railroad property, and $200,000 expended for detectives, guards, etc. The strikers are estimated to have lost $500,000 in wages, and 6,000 high priced men have been temporarily thrown out of employment.

The Allen County Poultry Association.

The Allen county Poultry association met last night and elected the following officers:

President—J. B. Neizer, Monroeville.
Vice-Presidents—W. D. Page, city; W. A. Rickett, Columbia City; Daniel Christian, Roanoke.
Secretary—J. H. Welsh.
Treasurer—George P. Gordon.
Executive Committee—J. J. Baker, jr., city; W. H. Whittern, Monroeville; Hans Newell, city.

The next poultry show will be held in this city from February 1 to 5, 1887. B. W. Pearse, Indianapolis, judge.

Dr. Lucy C. Waite, of Chicago, has been admitted to the medical department of the University of Vienna on the same terms with male students. So much for waiting for the clouds of prejudice to roll by.

W. D. Howells, it is said, will write a biography of Longfellow for the "American Men of Letters Series."

ONE WRITER'S HISTORY.

Something About Wilkeson.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 12.—I read Frank Wilkeson's sketches in The Sun, of this city, several years before I ever met him. They were interesting to me in subject as well as style. He wrote of wild life—the people who dwelt in lonely cabins in the woods and on the plains of the west, and of the untamed people in the mountains and forests of the south. His subjects were delightfully fresh, and were treated with such forceful simplicity and warm interest that one could immediately see that the writer was one who wrote because he wanted to tell something that interested him deeply, and in no sense resembled the numberless writers who scour the earth continually for subjects to "write up" or "write down," till one wearies at the very sight of their names.

One cannot fail to see by Frank Wilkeson's literary work that he loves nature and natural people, and has no liking for shams or pretenders. His sketches are among the choicest contributions to journalistic literature, yet I doubt if many of his readers and admirers know anything about the man himself.

He was born in Buffalo, this state, and is the youngest son of Samuel Wilkeson, the journalist, and was 38 years old in March. The late civil war made a soldier of him before he was 16 years old. He ran away from home and enlisted in a battery of volunteer artillery. He served as a cannoneer in the Army of the Potomac through all the fighting from the Wilderness to the front of Petersburg; was mustered out at the end of his term of enlistment; re-enlisted in the regular army, and on the same day was promoted from the ranks to a lieutenantcy in the Fourth United States artillery.

A brevet captain in the regular army at the age of a little over 18, he resigned his commission to enter a school of mathematics, preparatory to his chosen life-work of a mining engineer. In 1867 he went into the service of the Cambria Iron company, in Pennsylvania, to qualify himself for the management of their underground property. He worked as a miner of coal and iron ore for two years. Then, on a disagreement with the Cambria owners, he accepted employment from the Northern Pacific Railroad company as a civil engineer, and for two years took part in locating surveys for that corporation's main line through the Rocky mountains in Montana, across the plains of the Columbia, down the north bank of the Columbia river, down the eastern side of Puget sound, and across the Cascade mountains by many routes. He also explored for the Northern Pacific company the eastern slope of the Rocky range, from the Deer Lodge pass to the north of the Assinaboine river, for coal, iron and copper, and hunted the east bank of the Missouri river, above Bismarck, for bituminous coal. During all this adventurous, and then most dangerous, service, he had a 1,400 acre farm in Kansas, and on it a wife and a baby. These finally pulled him out of engineering and he settled down in Kansas to raise cattle and grow wheat. Being a mighty hunter, he enlivened the terribly tame business of cattle raising with bird shooting on the prairies and elk hunting on the Rocky mountains, as well as a little prospecting for gold and silver, and much consorting with hunters and prospectors in the Medicine Bow range. He frequently wrote his experiences for The Sun, of this city, sketches that will be long and pleasantly remembered by all who read them. Finally he freed himself from the Kansas ranch by leasing it, and bought a gold placer in the Douglas mining district in Wyoming territory, in sight of the high Rabbit Ear peak, and purchased a deserted log palace on the bank of a roaring mountain stream, furnished and stocked it, and settled down with his wife and two boys to enjoy life rationally, and wash out gold in the intervals when he was not deep in the forest with his blankets and rifle. Altogether, he lived on the plains and in the Rocky mountains fourteen years. Eastern by birth and nurture, he is western in every fiber of his body.

In 1884, to get near to his father, whom he tenderly loves, and who lives in New York city, he built a house in Bridge Hampton, at the east end of Long Island. There he now resides. But he yet owns the gold placer and the log palace in the Medicine Bow mountains, and elk and deer and beaver come into his sleep, and nightly he hears the voices of the forest calling to him to come home.

Mr. Wilkeson is a man of tremendous physical force as well as strong and fine mentality. He has a large physique, a handsome head set on a neck like a massive column of brown stone, big clear eyes full of kindness, and a voice rich and deep and full of sweet tones—such a voice as no man not honest and kindly could be gifted with. He could be what is called great if he chose to figure where the world's prizes are offered. He has the force and capacity to achieve extraordinary things. He has, however, chosen to live out of the contest as much as possible. With his family, his dogs, guns and love of nature and nature's wildnesses he finds deeper joys than the strife of life affords.

He writes only when the mood seizes him, and never to order, as many unlucky souls are compelled to do. He makes a recreation rather than a profession of it. For that reason what he does write has a force and freshness that make themselves felt.

He is a pleasing talker, with a fund of rich experiences of a kind not common; but in conversation he is modest and deferential—never egotistical. With the exception of Prentice Mulford, I know no writer who loves the wilderness so well, or who has had so much experience in wild life, in the mountainous mining districts. Yet both these men have more warm sympathy with their fellow-men than one often finds in those who call themselves philanthropists. Both are thinkers on the problems that affect the welfare of humanity, and are always on the humanitarian side. Both, too, were born and brought up in the east, and both are western by nature in every particular.

Mr. Wilkeson's chirography is as neat and perfect as pen can make it. His manuscript is a joy to editors, and his private letters are models of courtesy and kindness. He expects to go to the Rocky mountains on a long trip during the coming summer, and will treat the public to some more charming pictures of wild western life.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Father Kolasinski has returned to Detroit, and the Polish church troubles are being renewed.

Josef Victor von Schoeffel, German poet, is dead.

C. F. Gunther, a Chicago broker, owns the original manuscript of Payne's "Home, Sweet Home."

Mr. Frederick Douglass will deliver his lecture on John Brown in Music Hall, Boston, next month.

Martin Irons, the head of the Missouri strikers, is sixty-four years old, an American by birth and a machinist by trade.

T. B. Aldrich, editor of the Atlantic, lives near a grave yard. He says he has excellent neighbors; they never send in any manuscript.

From a recent investigation by the court it is announced that the estate of the late Hon. Thaddeus Stevens will not realize enough to pay the numerous bequests.

F. Marion Crawford, who is writing a new story entitled "Sarracinosca" for Blackwood's Magazine, introduces Cardinal Antonelli as one of the characters. Politics are lightly treated, sentiment and society being the chief themes of the story.

Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore, pronounces the publication in newspapers of certain pious performances in the church a profanation of sacred things, and recommends the establishment of a daily paper in every large city to defend the Catholic religion against its enemies.

Count de Lessips is laughed at for being sanguine that he will live till 1889 and charter a steamer, take his whole family, and, passing through the Panama canal, return to France by way of Suez. But the real difficulty by that time may be to find a steamer that will hold his whole family.

"What is Dennis Kearney doing now?" was recently asked of a Californian. "Talking on the sand-lots every Sunday," he said. "But what does he do during the week?" "Oh, he keeps an intelligence office for persons seeking servants and servants seeking places." "Does he have any dealings with the Chinese?" "Oh, no. He sticks to his old text. The legend over his office is, 'No Chinese need apply.'"

Ex-Secretary Benjamin H. Bristow, now a leading lawyer at the New York bar, is described by a recent observer as being a "portly man, and of a kind and genial rather than dignified presence. His face is fleshy and pale, his forehead high and broad, and a few straggling hairs still find root in the crown of his large and well set head. A gray mustace and short chin whiskers keep one of his hands busy stroking them most of the time."

Alfred Krupp, the German cannon builder, owns probably the largest business in the world, dependant on one individual. The works within the town of Essen occupy more than 500 acres, half of which are under cover. According to a census taken in September, 1881, the number of hands employed by Mr. Krupp was 19,605, the members of their families 45,776, making 65,381 persons supported by his works. Mr. Krupp owns 547 iron mines in Germany. He owns four sea steamers, and there are connected with the Esson works forty-two miles of railway, employing twenty-eight locomotives and 883 cars, sixty horses, with 191 wagons, and forty miles of telegraph wires, with thirty-five stations and fifty-five Morse apparatuses. The establishment possesses a grand chemical laboratory, a photographic and lithographic atelier, a printing office with three steam and six hand presses, and a book-binding room. The establishment even runs a hotel in Esson.

The Sheldon Sensation.

SHELDON, April 11, 1886.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

DEAR SIR—I noticed in your briefs of March 31, in regard to a great sensation at Sheldon. I would respectfully inform you that the sensation started in Fort Wayne, and as far as the sensation is concerned, its force was spent before it reached Sheldon and vicinity, as the writer of the brief had lived here too long for the citizens not to know and understand the nature of her designs. As far as Belzibub is concerned, he makes the bullets and gets his daughter to shoot them. Now, as far as the babe is concerned, it lies in its grave and rests in peace; and as far as its resurrection is concerned, it is a base lie and manufactured out of whole cloth.

Yours truly,
JOHN B. WOODS.

Attention Jeffersonians.

There will be a meeting of the Jeffersonian club next Monday evening at the circuit court room. All the members are asked to be present, as the future welfare of the club is to be discussed.

SCHAUMACHER, the "oatmeal king," of Akron, Ohio, came to this country very poor and got into the liquor business. He didn't like that, and began to grind oats by hand and peddle it from a hand cart. In thirty years he has built up the largest factory of the kind in the world. He is now a strong temperance man, and won't have an employe about him that drinks even beer. Most of his hundreds of workmen are Germans. He once brought a master workman from Germany at a big salary, on a two years' contract. The second day after he began work Schaumacher discovered that he drank beer. In two hours the man quit work and went back home with a check for $5.000.

If Senator Platt Has His Way.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—In the senate Mr. Platt took the floor on his resolution relating to the executive session. He said: "But in no sense is it a question of party politics. It is above all party questions, and is the most important question of administrative reform to which the senate could at this time devote its attention."

HOUSE.

Mr. Turner, of Georgia, called up as a privileged question the Ohio contested case of Hurd vs. Romeis. It was agreed to as the previous question and will be considered after eight hours debate. There are three reports from the committee on elections, the majority confirming Romeis, the minority declaring Hurd entitled to a seat and another minority report taking the ground that neither were duly elected.

Mr. Robertson, of Kentucky, spoke in Hurd's behalf and asserted that in precinct eight, Eighth ward, Toledo, not one of the statute laws of Ohio had been complied with. He denounced the methods which he said prevailed in Ohio elections and remarked that the tissue ballots of South Carolina and the bull dozing of Louisiana must pale into insignificence when the country learned the methods on which Ohio republican elections were arranged.

In the republican caucus last night Representative Steele was selected as Indiana's representative upon the congressional campaign committee.

The democratic congressional campaign committee will meet this evening. Congressman Ford represents Indiana.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 13.—John Ryan, a journeyman tailor, was choked to death with a piece of meat in his throat. He was under the influence of liquor and went to supper after the usual hour, eating alone. He was heard to fall on the floor by a boarder overhead, who came downstairs to find Ryan in the throes of death. Surgeons were summoned, but life was extinct when they arrived. A piece of beef was extracted from the dead man's throat measuring five inches long, one inch thick and two inches wide. He had evidently taken it from the plate and attempted to swallow it without cutting up or mastication. Ryan was about twenty-five years of age, and came here six years ago from New York city, where he has living two sisters and a brother.

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM.

Civil-service reform comes hard, because the evils against which it is aimed have been long intrenched in the body politic and can only be removed by heroic treatment. Because an abuse is of long standing, however, is no reason why it should be tolerated, and the assertion of such a principle is without rhyme or reason. Diseases which afflict the human body are not looked upon as blessings because long endured, nor should those which afflict the state be considered so. Everything which is inconsistent with the most perfect working of the body and government must be gotten rid of. Such, at least, is the belief of Mr. W. D. Murphy, of No. 310 Yandes street, Indianapolis, who has recently been cured of rheumatism of twenty-five years' standing by that great remedy, Athlophoros. Age gave the disease no charm in his eyes, and he swept it away at the first opportunity. He himself tells all about the matter in this way:

"My rheumatism dates way back about twenty-five years. I first contracted it in the war, in which I served four years and six months. After returning home from service the disease seemed to assume a periodical form. I would have at least two severe attacks every year, but even between these attacks I would suffer all the time. These attacks prevented me from getting about, and many times I could not walk or get out of bed. They would catch me in the legs so that after standing awhile I would feel suddenly weak and in danger of falling."

"Was it during one of these attacks that you used Athlophoros?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"Yes; that's the time and that's when it did its work for me. I saw it advertised and sent to B. Brehm, the druggist on Columbia avenue, for a bottle. It was in the afternoon I took the first dose and then at night I took another. I slept soundly that night. The next morning when I awoke I had no pain. I took a few doses more, only using about two-thirds of a bottle altogether and my rheumatism was all gone. That is over a year ago and I have only felt a little twinge of the pain since, but nothing to speak of."

"Do you know of any others who have used Athlophoros?"

"Yes. I have recommended it to many different persons. My confidence was so great in the medicine that in several instances I have bought bottles of it and given them to people, saying at the time that if it did not do its work they need not pay for it; but there is not a single case in which I did not have my money within a week. There is Mrs. Wright, an aged lady of seventy, living a few miles from here, who, after suffering from rheumatic pains for fifteen years, was entirely rid of all pain by three or four bottles of Athlophoros. I recommended another lady, who was supposed to be suffering from dyspepsia, but who in reality had neuralgia of the stomach, to try Athlophoros, and it soon cured her. My neighbor, who had a severe attack of neuralgia, his face being swollen out of all shape, was cured by a few doses. My confidence in Athlophoros is very strong, and I believe that if any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia will take it right it will cure ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. It is worth $100 a bottle to every sufferer from rheumatism."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS Co., 112 Wall Street, New York.

OFFICIAL PAPER COUNTY AND CITY.

TUESDAY, APRIL 13, 1886.

THE smile was neither "childlike nor bland," when nearly two-thirds of the members of congress voted against free coinage.

THE new Rembrandt, purchased at Cologne by the Belgian Government for 100,000 francs, has been placed in the Brussels Museum. It is a portrait of great simplicity of design, representing an aged housewife of the middle class, but painted with as much delicacy as boldness. It bears the genuine signature of the great master, and is dated 1656. It belongs, consequently, to the period when his genius had reached its full maturity. The male portrait already in the Brussels Museum dates from 1641, and is of much less value than the new acquisition.

SIR JOSEPH COOK, to whom Tennie C. Claflin, the sister of Victoria Woodhull, was married, is Marquis Montserrat of the nobility of Portugal, in which country he is the possessor of a marble villa famous for the beauty of its site—at Centra, pronounced by Byron in "Childe Harold," the world's paradise. A delightful drive of twenty miles from Lisbon and you are there. The mountain is crowned by the gilded dome and graceful minarets of the king's chateau, to the left of which is the famous cork-wood convent, while the right is flanked by the ruins of a Saracenic stronghold.

THE Hungarian Count Zichy has a remarkable personal history. Losing at the age of 14 his right arm, from hunting, after a forced rest of a few months, he determined to apply himself until he could do everything as well as if he were not physically disabled. So perfectly has he succeeded that to-day he rides, drives, rows, fences, writes, serves himself in every way, is a welcome society man, and, best of all, plays the piano finely, having been a pupil of Liszt for six years. He was taught to replace the missing hand by the thumb of the left hand, and is able to make "bounds" of five and six octaves.

AN extraordinary charge was investigated by the Kingsbridge (Devon) magistrates when Alice Mitchell, a domestic servant, was charged with placing poison in a pudding intended for consumption by the pupils at a ladies' school at Paignton. It was alleged that the prisoner, who had had notice to leave, had placed some phosphorus paste or rat poison in the pudding, and on dinner being served the pudding was observed to give off phosphorus fumes, or, as some of the young ladies described it, it burst into flames. It was proved that the girl knew where the phosphorus was kept and that she had had charge of the pudding.

IF Miss Rosa Squire ever goes on a strike she will have the sympathy of all the newspapers. At present Rosa is not "killing" locomotives but saving them. The fair Rosa is station agent at Richmond Hill on the Long Island Railroad. A heavy load of stone stuck on the railway and the driver whipped up his horses, whereupon the team broke loose and ran away, leaving the wagon across the track. Rosa grasped the situation and a red flag at the same moment. She ran to the curve and waved the flag. The express succeeded in stopping twenty feet from the wagon, although it nearly jerked the heads off the passengers in doing so.

THE SENTINEL has not said a word unkindly of Mr. John Slater, township assessor-elect, but it does question the propriety, justice and wisdom of turning the affairs of his office over to Wm. Briant. His appraisement must stand for six years, and, judging by his valuation six years ago, it will be far from just and not remote from favoritism. Assessor Schroeder has now a statement showing that Mr. Briant pursued a queer policy six years ago, and it is because of this fact that the leading republicans are urging Mr. Slater to make a change. THE SENTINEL asks Mr. Slater to fill the office himself, and it will assist him to make his administration a success. Mr. Briant's appointment is a mistake, and the sooner it is realized the better.

A YOUNG Swede makes a living in Boston by washing dogs. He goes from house to house in the fashionable quarters, and for fifty cents or seventy-five, according to the size of the dog, gives the pets thorough baths. It is said that the plan was the thought of a well-known charitable woman. She wanted to help the young fellow, who was out of work, and interested her friends in the scheme, and now he has about all the dog-washing he can attend to.

M. CHARLES GIRARD, chemist, of Paris, recently amused himself by investigation of the ingredients of a beautiful red currant jelly, charmingly put up for export to the United States. There was not an atom of fruit in the mass, as was demonstrated by the adding to it of methylated alcohol, which would have turned it green had it contained any fruit acid. It was found to consist of gelatine, sweetened with glycerine residue, colored with pichsine (a poisonous mineral extract), and flavored with no one knows what. A great many people in this country imagine no currant jelly is so good as that which is imported from France.

ONE of those heroines of whom the world hears but little lives near Lexington, Ga. Her name is Sallie Hansford. Her husband has been bedridden with rheumatism for nine years, and she has had a family of four children—two boys and two girls—to support. Last year she bought one hundred and seven acres of land, much of it original forest, and with the aid of her two boys, fourteen and fifteen years old, cleared five acres. She cut down the trees, rolled the logs together, split the rails, built the fence, and burned the brush with their help, and raised last year nine bales of cotton, also corn and peas enough for her own use, and paid her rent, her store account, and forty dollars on her land. She has bought her meat for this year and paid for it. In addition to this, she has done the cooking, and gone to market with eggs and chickens.

THREE REASONS

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:—

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than any other time. Take it now.

The dead body of a man was found yesterday near the Fort Wayne railroad track at Plymouth, Indiana, who from a telegram found in his pocket is supposed to have been George McClary.

Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets,"

Positively popular; provoke praise; prove priceless; peculiarly prompt; perceptibly potent; producing permanent profit; precluding pimples and pustules; promoting purity and peace. Purchase. Price petty. Pharmacists patronising Pierce procure plenty.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

OLD AGE.

The Means of Prolonging Life After Middle Age.

(From the Wilmington, Del., "News.")

An eminent London physician, John Gardner, M. D., whose specialty is diseases of the aged, has written a work on his favorite topic, and the result of his research is, that the only sure and abiding strength which old age receives is a medical treatment, with pure whisky. Quoting from his work, the doctor says: "Elderly persons who in winter suffer from cold feet, and find artificial heat, applied externally fails to afford relief, may with undoubted propriety and advantage take whisky and hot water on going to bed. If a headache or foul tongue follows, the inference is, the spirit was impure, probably containing fusel oil. A very slight trace of this noxious ingredient, in spirits, will, in some constitutions, produce headache—an accurate a test of impurity as chemistry can employ. On the subject of stimulants and their medicinal use when pure, Dr. Gardner further says: "The advocates of total abstinence equally fail to produce evidence in support of their opinion, that all stimulants are inimical to health and longevity. Science, common sense, Holy Scriptures and all experience, testify to the benefits to be derived. "The Every Saturday" of Baltimore, Md., publishes an interview, with the few remaining veterans, who were the defenders of the city in 1812, and who, though they have advanced far into the vale of years, enjoy good health, for which, each in turn, gave a potent reason. This little band of heroes, comprised of Mr. John C. Morford, aged 89 years, George Boss, 92; Samuel Jennings, 89; John Peddecord, 90; Nathaniel Watts 90, were visited at their separate homes, and for the many ills and infirmities to which age is subjected, each had used Duffy's pure malt whiskey medicinally, and each acknowledged its superior merits and the benefits they had derived from its use. From these evidences the reporter moralizes thus: "that the proof was positive that they had prolonged their lives by proper attention to nature's laws, and that the claim of the prohibitionists that stimulants are not conducive to longevity, had fallen to the ground."

THE Baptists of Georgia are rejoicing over their capture of Chief Justice O. A. Lochrane, for years an Episcopalian. He is an active prohibitionist, and was therefore thrown much in the society of the Rev. Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, a Baptist pulpit orator of local fame. After the election which resulted in thorough victory for the prohibitionists, the preacher went with the Judge to his home, where wine casks and bottles were rolled out to the streets and emptied. In a few days Judge Lochrane will be immersed.

Mr. Henry Mylander, a well known tailor of Baltimore, writes: "I have been suffering for some time with a severe pain in my back, from which I was unable to obtain relief. I gave Salvation Oil a trial and less than a bottle entirely cured me. I do not hesitate to pronounce it a most excellent liniment."

In the investigation of the Jeffersonville levee appropriation scandal, O. O. Stealey, Speaker Carlisle's clerk, at the time of the incident a house committee clerk, completely vindicated himself from all blamable connection with the job. It seems that the money was paid to E. N. Hill, a Washington attorney, by Warder, but that Hill ever did anything for the money is not clear. This item will not find a place in the columns of many of the republican organs. But all of them published the scandal on Stealey in full.

I think Ely's Cream Balm is the best remedy for catarrh I ever saw. I never took anything that relieved me so quickly and I have not felt so well for a long time. I used to be troubled with severe headaches two or three times a week, but since using the balm have only had one and that was very light compared with the former ones,—A. J. Alcorn, agent U. P. DR. A. C. HOXSIE'S CERTAIN CROUP CURE.—This preparation, a private and original prescription, was extensively used in an unlimited practice for many years, with perfect success by the late A. C. Hoxsie, M. D., of Buffalo, N. Y. Having thoroughly tested and tried this remedy, he had no hesitation in pronouncing it positive, swift and sure to cure Croup in its most aggravated form, when administered promptly and according to directions. Its powerful and direct effect upon the diseased mucous membrane, render it particularly invaluable to those living at a distance from a physician—as it is seldom necessary to call in professional aid, if the "Certain Croup Cure" is near at hand. While powerful and effectual, it contains no opium in any form, nor any drug which can have a deleterious or injurious effect upon the system. The most delicate infant may take it, as directed, with perfect safty. Price $1.00. For sale by all first-class druggists, wholesale and retail. dec22-eodaw3m

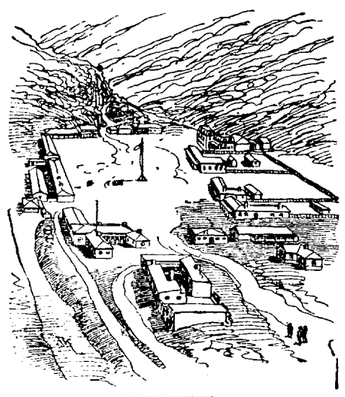
TUESDAY, APRIL 13, 1886.

FORT BOWIE, ARIZONA.

The Station to Which Capt. Crawford's Body was Brought.

A place of considerable importance this old fort is becoming latterly. It is from this point that news of the hostile Indians is sent to Washington, when any news arrives that can be depended on for two days at a time. One day Geronimo is captured, the next day he escapes. Then he is recaptured, and, presto! next day he is gone again.

Here at this fort, which you see in the picture, he promised faithfully to appear and deliver himself up to the United States authorities and thereafter keep the peace. Instead of doing so, he fled to the mountains as fast as he and a few trusty braves could get away, considering that they were loaded down with 200 rounds of ammunition each. It was the third time Geronimo had broken his solemn promise to the United States government. He is as treacherous as a weasel. The safest way to dispose of him next time he is caught will be to shoot him on sight. But when will he be caught to stay?



FORT BOWIE.

This old fort, to which brave Capt. Crawford's body was brought by slow, sad marches, has a history of its own. The story dates as far back as the second year of the late civil war. In July, 1862, Gen. Carleton camped here on his way east to the war, with a body of California volunteers. He stopped here because water was struck at this spot. Water was more precious than gold on those long desert marches. It was necessary to guard the springs from the Apaches, in order to keep the route of travel open. So a company of soldiers was left, and the place was named Fort Bowie.

There was not a recommendation to the spot except that springs of fresh water were there. It was down in the heart of a savage, desolate mountain region. The mountains slope to the north. Their sides are covered with sage brush and cactus, and the ground is wild and broken with rocks.

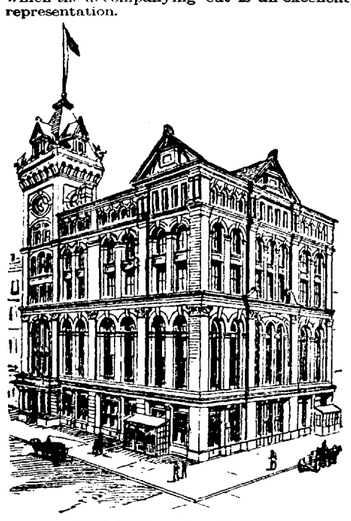
The place is on the military route from Tucson to Santa Fe. The soil is like much of the rest of the country hereabouts, only barren from want of irrigation. As that is being accomplished the region of what the old geographies called the Great American Desert is gradually being transformed into grain fields and gardens. They say the word Arizona means "arid zone."

Bowie is the oldest garrisoned fort in Arizona. At the outbreak of the war the other military stations were abandoned, and when Gen. Carleton left the little company of California volunteers at this place in 1862 there was not a United States soldier in the territory. The Apache Indians were as hostile to the government then as they are now, and when they saw the other forts abandoned it is said they fancied they had conquered the United States. It is to be hoped Geronimo's repeated escapes will not incline them to the same opinion now.

Fort Bowie has been greatly improved in the last few years.

The New York Mercantile Exchange.

The experiment is going to be tried in New York of transacting one hundred different branches of trade under one roof. It is to be a wholesale bazaar, on the principal of one of the retail shopping marts, only that here large quantities of goods will be sold, and then only through samples. If the scheme is successful it will work a revolution in some of the methods of New York business. The promoters of the enterprise have so much faith in it that they have just completed a building for the purposes of the exchange, of which the accompanying cut is an excellent representation.



THE EXCHANGE BUILDING.

April 7, was the day set apart for the dedication of this building. It is situated on the corner of Hudson and Harrison streets in the midst of the wholesale grocery and produce district.

This exchange, though the youngest, promises to be the liveliest of them all. It was organized in 1873 by a few dealers in dairy products; it now numbers some 800 members. Its success is largely due to the catholic spirit of its governing committee. They realize that this is the age of combination and co-operation and consolidation, and they hope to have the sellers of butter and boots, of dry goods and drugs, as well as grocers meet together on the same floor for barter and exchange and the prices which rule here will likely rule the country.

A Red Flag Before a Mad Bull.

I can hardly understand how the Morgan syndicate are gifted with so little foresight and common sense as to attempt to put up the price of coal in the face of the stand taken by the labor party, more especially when they show such enormous power. Some weeks ago I ventured to point out to these capitalists that labor was beginning to assert its power, and yet I find that a combination, representing a capital of over $600,000,000, are banded together with a view to advancing the price of one of the necessities of life. It looks as if they were shaking a red flag before a mad bull, and if ever the bull does get among them there will be a lively rattling of old bones.—Financier in Town Topics.

REV. W. H. MILBURN.

The Doughty Congressional Chaplain Who Made the Famous Prayer.

Rev. W. H. Milburn has gone and done it. He is only less of a sensation than "'Ostler Joe" was last week.

The gentleman is the chaplain of the United States house of representatives at Washington. He is known the country over as "the blind preacher," from having quite lost the sight of one eye, and almost that of the other, when he was a boy.

REV. W. H. MILBURN.

Blindness did not prevent him from studying for the ministry as soon as he was old enough, however.

The future chaplain was born in Philadelphia in 1823. When only 20 years old he was admitted as a preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church. He was a famous itinerant through the southern states. It is said that he traveled in that capacity over 200,000 miles. Nor is the present his first experience even as chaplain of the house of representatives. He filled that office thirty years ago under Buchanan. After his term of service was over there he went to England and lectured with great success. He is an eloquent and attractive speaker. The fact of his blindness adds an interest which has a touch of romance to his ministerial labors.

Rev. Mr. Milburn is also well known as a writer, having published several books, among them "Rifle, Ax and Saddlebags," and "Pioneers, Preachers and People of the Mississippi Valley."

He is accustomed to doing unusual things, as also to taking his own head for things. Once he took it into his head that he would not be a Methodist preacher any more. Then he had himself confirmed in the Episcopal church. But whether there was not enough emotional religion in the Episcopal fold, or for some other reason, he was not satisfied there and returned to the Methodist denomination in 1872.

As chaplain of the house, he is accustomed to inform the Almighty of the sins of the American people in the most vigorous and unmistakable manner. The prayer which has stirred up so much comment was one in which he prayed the Lord to rid the land of brokers and stock gamblers and other people who do not earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

Chaplain Milburn is now physically, although in his 64th year, as strong and robust as most men of 30, and his intellect is of more than common power. He can give more accurate descriptions of Westminster Abbey, Cologne Cathedral, Notre Dame and other Old World monuments he has visited than can the majority of those persons who have not been dependent on other people's eyes and on their sense of touch. He can describe the rocky outlines and mountainous declivities of the Sierras and of the Rocky mountains, and the picturesque beauties of the Blue Ridge with a force and vigor combined with accuracy rarely equalled, even by writers who still retain their sight, while he has been blind since he was 5 years old.

The reverend gentleman is of tall and commanding presence. Broad chested and inclined to stoutness, he is the picture of health. A full, untrimmed gray beard floats way down his vest, while his black hair, streaked with silver, is brushed back from his high forhead and hangs in bushy luxuriance upon the collar of his clerical coat. His strongly-marked features bear a kindly exprssion, and are every now and then lit up by a pleasant smile. While talking he fixes his eyes upon the person whom he is addressing and the sightless orbs appear to look straight into the soul of his listener. He is a most entertaining talker, and one of his favorite hobbies is the subject of health and its promotion. He is a very Jew in his selection of food, positively eschewing all hog meats, and he treats himself to a regular course of currycomb and rough towel, cold water, oil and sunbaths every morning. As he himself says, he is one of the best groomed men in the country.

My daughter was cured by your valuable medicine, Athlophoros, after trying many other remedies with no relief. We have recommended it in several cases where it has made remarkable cures. William J. Mosher, 133 Park street, Detroit, Mich.

Wuterich was led to the act by the fatal sickness of his only daughter, who lived with him. He had been of unsound mind for many years past.

Bernard Macauley.

Many an old theatre goer will hear with a melancholy feeling of the death of this well known actor. A man of splendid physique, he ought to have been in his prime, for he was not as old as Henry Irving or Edwin Booth. But he early contracted a passion for drink, which shortened his days at last. Only for this he would have reached a high place among interpreters of the drama. As it was, he won distinction. He died of Bright's disease at St. Vincent's hospital, New York city.

BERNARD MACAULEY.

Bernard Macauley was born in New York city in 1837. In 1864 he appeared in that city as Armand Duval to Matilda Heron's Camille. He was a handsome young man, with a rich voice and a brilliant eye. He went west and became a theatre manager. He had theatres in Cincinnati and Louisville. In those cities he was very popular, as man, manager and actor. He played himself the leading male roles in the stock companies he managed. He played Macbeth to Charlotte Cushman's Lady Macbeth at her last appearance in Cincinnati before her death, during the tour she made after she became afflicted with the cancer that put an end to her life. Macauley did not suffer even in comparison with Charlotte Cushman.

Afterwards he fell into difficulties and lost his property. The last play of any note that he appeared in was "The Messenger from Jarvis Section," with which he went on the road for several years. His wife, who survives him, was Rachel Johnson, herself a talented actress.

There was great excitement all over the town of New Haven. A fellow had stolen a ham. When the citizens learned of this horrible crime about a dozen of them mounted on horseback and pursued the thief. When they got him the stranger had swallowed the ham, so they had to let him go on account of the missing evidence.

"Frank Erlenbach and Adolph Lemmerman, of this city, went to Fort Wayne Sunday noon, intending to return on the evening train, but unfortunately they struck the wrong street and were unable to find the Wabash depot until this morning, when they were kindly cared for and helped on the train," says the Bluffton Herald.

If the press comments on "Zozo" are a proper indication, the merits of the drama are worthy of praise. The Baltimore American says: "The piece is quite different from the old style, inasmuch as there is no ballet and no variety specialities. It is singularly clean, highly amusing, exceedingly beautiful and quite interesting, while the scenery and paraphernalia excels any similar entertainment in Baltimore."

A great deal depends on whether or not the Nickel Plate will enter the passenger department of the Central Traffic association at the meeting to be held in Chicago Thursday. Should the Nickel Plate join there is a possibility of maintaining present rates. If it should not, the present rates, already in a strained condition, would not last a week.

J. H. Soule, editor of the Washington Gazette, replies to Mrs. S. C. Hoffman, of the postoffice, who sought information for the widows of soldiers, who are benefitted by the law recently enacted in congress. Mr. Soules says: "There is nothing for you to do to get the increase allowed under the new law. The pension agent will pay you $12 per month from March 19, 1886, without any application being required. When you receive your next check the amount of the increase will be included"

Mattie Vickers drew an audience which nearly filled the Academy last night. They laughed till they were hoarse at the excrutiatingly funny performance and voted it one of the best of its kind ever seen in Fort Wayne. As a play "Jacquine" does not amount to much, but it offers every advantage in which Miss Vickers, Charley Rogers and Thomas J. Ryan can show their specialties and this they do to the great satisfaction of the audience. "Jacquine" will be repeated to-night and at both performance to-morrow, which closes the engagement.

Yesterday afternoon twenty-five years ago, Fort Sumpter was bombarded.

Miss Julia Nelson, the accomplished daughter of Sheriff DeGroff Nelson, returned to-day from Cincinnati, where she visited relatives.

The democrats are arranging for the city election and mean business. Democrats will be asked to show their colors, as no more defeats must occur.

Miss Minnie Maddern needs not a column of praise. She is known, and the simple announcement that she is coming will pack the Temple to-morrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Anderson to-day celebrated the fifty-eighth anniversary of their marriage. The venerable and esteemed people are at home to their friends, and congratulations pour in on them.

Miss Maggie Graney will be buried to-morrow morning from the Cathedral at 9 o'clock. The funeral will leave her home, 65 Williams street, at 8:30. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

A prominent physicisn remarked that so long as people continued to throw slop in the alleys and in the streets, we would have considerable sickness. Something should be done by the city council to put a stop to throwing slop in the alleys and streets.

MRS. MANIER.

Another Respected Resident Gone.

Mrs. Margaret Manier died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Joseph Perry No. 2 Oak street, at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon, April 12. She had been confined to her room since last December. Mrs. Manier is better known by our younger citizens as Grandma Pollette. She was born in Loraine, France, in the Bourg of Fong, in the department of Mearthe, in the year A. D. 1816. She emigrated thence to America with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Poirson, who long since died in this county, and arrived at Buffalo in the year 1832. There she married Hypolite Manier. The newly married couple immediately took passage for Toledo, and from thence walked to Fort Wayne, arriving here in 1833. They entered the service of the late Chief Richardville. After several years service on the canal and other public improvements, Mr. Manier pursued farming for several years in Lake township. In 1856 they removed to Fort Wayne and established a boarding house on East Columbia street, where Mr. Manier died in 1870. Since then Mrs. Manier has resided among her several children, to whom she was deeply attached, and the attachment was warmly reciprocated. There survive her seven children; two sons, Mr. Victor Manier, of Peoria, Ill., and Mr. Frank Manier; and five daughters, Mrs. Joseph Langard, Mrs. F. Delgrange, Mrs. Rudolph Reffelt, Mrs. Joseph Perry and Mrs. F. Casso. Mrs. Manier leaves a considerable estate.

Mrs. Manier leaves forty grand children and eight great grand children. The funeral occurs to-morrow at 10 o'clock from the Cathedral.

SAVED ITS LIFE.

An Infant Rescued From a Pest House Death.

Some months ago when Mrs. Jordan, of the Sixth ward, was stricken with small pox, she was hurried to the pest house with her babe in her arms. The woman realized death awaited her, but a mother's love was strong even then and she clung to her child until fever dethroned her reason. Mrs. Dr. A. J. Rauch, who lives north of the poor house, took the little one from its dead mother's arms, nursed it through a severe attack of varioloid and has just given the babe to Mrs. Jeremiah Mudge, of DeWald street, well and dimple-faced. Mrs. Rauch did this unostentatious work of charity unpaid and unheard of till now.

FOR EDUCATION.

A High Tribute to Trustee Gaffney.

An institute of the Wayne township teachers was held at school house No. 4 on Saturday, April 10. Trustee Gaffney took the chair and introduced Trustee-elect H. Hilbrecht. C. Methley was secretary and Misses Kelsey and Burgess and Messrs. Philley and Methley committee on resolutions.

Mr. Philley took the uses of the infinitive and participle in a very able manner. Miss Burgess followed with a class in grammar, which was very good, and Miss Emma Kelsey read an interesting essay on the nervous system.

At the afternoon session C. Methley took the subject of "Percentage." Miss Eliza Gaffney, teacher of the school, had a class of her scholars in reading, and they acquitted themselves admirably. Miss Burgess read a very learned essay on language, and Mr. T. Greer, jr., explained the system of government surveys in a satisfactory manner.

Good music, singing and recitations helped to enliven the occasion. Songs by Mr. Thomas, Mrs. Rogers and families were specially noticeable, as were recitations by Miss Addie Gaffney and several of the scholars. There was a large attendance, among whom were Trustee-elect Hilbrecht, Mr. Thomas Greer, sr., Mr. Herman Gerke, Mr. McMaken and others.

Mr. Gaffney addressed the teachers for the last time during his term as trustee, and on motion of Mr. Philley it was resolved to hand his address to the papers for publication. He was followed by Mr. Hilbrecht, who said he trusted the teachers would act in harmony with him for the benefit of the schools.

The following resolutions were then passed:

WHEREAS, The intimate relations held during the past four years between Mr. Gaffney and the teachers of Wayne township, makes it fitting that he record our appreciation of him; therefore,

Resolved, That the wisdom and ability which he has exercised in aid of our work by counsel, service and compensation will be held in grateful remembrance.

It was decided to hold another institute at district No. 6 in four weeks. The meeting then adjodrned.

ANTI-KALSOMINE.

We are now the agents for the only permanent wall finish Anti-Kalsomine. It covers as well as kalsomine, need never be washed to be renewed; will take a hundred coats if necessary, without cracking, chalking or peeling off. It is sanitary in its composition, kalsomine is not. It is also an excellent primer for outside as well as inside work; it fills the pores of the wood better than white lead, ochre or any known pigment; makes a more solid surface, is much cheaper than ocher or lead, and is the best covering for walls known. Try it and be convinced.

We have also a large stock of wall paper patterns, ceiling decorations and borders, mixed paints, brushes, artists materials, etc. Give us a call at the paint and paper store of Wilding & Son, 191 Calhoun street. 13-1m

THE BITTERS.

Meyer Bros. & Co. Explain Their Position.

Editor of SENTINEL:

DEAR SIR:—Our Mr. J. F. W. Meyer has mailed us a copy of your paper of the 8th inst. in which he has marked an item in your city column which reads as follows: "Suit has been entered by the Brown Chemical company, of Baltimore, Md., against Meyer Bros. & Co., of St. Louis, for imitating the Brown's Iron Bitters. The Meyer Bros. & Co's. firm sell the preparation as Brown's Iron Tonic, hence the prosecution." While we do not contemplate to go into any newspaper controversy on this subject, but as Fort Wayne is our old home we should be sorry to have our reputation injured, and any remarks that would indicate that our emigration from there should have degenerated us into the business of counterfeiting, is a most serious matter to us, hence we feel that we are justified in denying the allegations above made.

In an evening paper of this city, also of the 8th inst., a dispatch is published dated on the 7th at Baltimore, which states among other things that "Meyer Bros. & Co., the well known druggists of St. Louis, are dealing in Brown's Iron Tonic, which, it is claimed, is an imitation of Brown's Iron Bitters." Thus it would appear that the Brown Chemical company is using the associated press reporter to advertise all over the country that they have sued Meyer Bros. & Co., and it is evident to us that the Brown Chemical company have adopted this plan as the cheapest to advertise their firm and thus cheat the newspapers. Brown's Iron Tonic is manufactured in Little Rock, Arkansas, by a firm which stands high in point of character, by the name of Lincoln & Brown, and there is no more appearance or indications of being an imitation than Brown's Iron Bitters is an imitation of Hostetter's Bitters.

We hope that the Brown Chemical company will use the associated press as freely when the suit is decided as it does now to make it known that we are being prosecuted for selling Brown's Iron tonic. Respectfully yours,

MEYER BROS. & Co.

What

Does it

Profit

A Man?

What does it profit you to buy some unknown and untried make of carpet, when it costs you fully as much as makes of carpets of established reputation and well known wearing qualities, which can be had, in most elegant variety, at our establishment?

What does it profit you to be asked $1 a yard for an 85c carpet, and spend a couple of hours "beating down" one of these half a dozen priced merchants to 90c? Wouldn't it be pleasanter, wouldn't it be cheaper to save five cents a yard and buy it of us, where you know, that under the one-price system, you always get the lowest possible price at once?

What does it profit you to buy a parlor suit away from home and pay $100 for a poorer made article than we would sell you at $65 to $75?

On general principles you ought to buy your goods at home, and thus assist in building up your own city; but personally we have no such favors to ask. If you can buy good furniture or carpets anywhere in the United States of America, cheaper than we will sell them, you are at liberty to do so. More than that, if we cannot sell them to you less than you can purchase them elsewhere, we do not ask your patronage.

But you should not forget that as we sell only the best made and most reliable goods, we cannot and will not compete with the shoddy stuff with which the markets of the country are at present glutted.

The Men are Returning to work at East St. Louis Under Military Protection.

A Prowling Striker Shot at by a Sentry ---How Trains Run There To-day.

ALL O. K.

The Southwestern Roads on Their Feet Again.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—The whole force of strikers of the St. Louis transfer company, confident of protection by the militia from molestation, have returned to their old places and scores of wagons, together with private trucks and other vehicles, this morning are hauling freight to the various depots of the railroads centering in East St. Louis. The force of switch and yardmen who returned to work yesterday was increased this morning. Most of the roads now have full crews of switchmen and yardmen and it is expected in a few days the resumption of operations by a large majority of the roads will be complete. Yesterday the bridge company had not been able to secure a sufficient number of men to handle all freight that the roads were offering, but to-day several more men resumed their old positions, and the company is doing a business almost as large as it was before the strike. In the yards across the river switch engines have been running all morning, making up freight trains, two of which have been sent out by the Burlington road without any interference by the strikers. The Wabash has sent out one train and those being made up in other yards will soon follow. No disturbances occured during last night or this morning beyond the firing of a shot about 2 o'clock this morning in the Indianapolis and St. Louis yards by a sentry at a man crawling along the ground between two freight trains and would not obey the order to halt. The shot did not take effect and the man escaped.

GOULD TO BE BOYCOTTED.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Regarding the threatened boycott of Jay Gould by the Central labor union, Robert Blizzard, the labor agitator said:

"John Brown's death was the first death in the rebellion, so the death of those innocent people in St Louis are the first in the new rebellion which is sure to come. Negro slavery had to go after John Brown died. White slavery has to go, and go it will. We won't burn down Gould's house, for labor built it. We must build up rather than destroy, but the boycott is a weapon more effective than fire, and we shall see if Gould can withstand it. The strikers are going to be well supported by us."

JAY GOULD TALKS.

Jay Gould was asked if he had discovered in what way the members of the Central Labor union proposed to boycott him. He replied that he had not and confessed he was rather curious to know. He added he could not see by what process of reasoning, any one could hold him responsible for the strike at East St. Louis and its results: "I have no property on that side of the river," he said, "no interest in any and no part in the management of any roads centering there."

A WOUNDED STRIKER DIES.

ST. LOUIS, April 13.—James Schoilard, who was wounded in Friday's shooting, died last night in the St. Louis hospital. Three other persons, wounded Friday, are not expected to live.

The Chicago Tribune estimates that the strike has cost the Gould lines $2,200,000 in gross revenue, $300,000 in damage in railroad property, and $200,000 expended for detectives, guards, etc. The strikers are estimated to have lost $500,000 in wages, and 6,000 high priced men have been temporarily thrown out of employment.

The Allen County Poultry Association.

The Allen county Poultry association met last night and elected the following officers:

President—J. B. Neizer, Monroeville.
Vice-Presidents—W. D. Page, city; W. A. Rickett, Columbia City; Daniel Christian, Roanoke.
Secretary—J. H. Welsh.
Treasurer—George P. Gordon.
Executive Committee—J. J. Baker, jr., city; W. H. Whittern, Monroeville; Hans Newell, city.

The next poultry show will be held in this city from February 1 to 5, 1887. B. W. Pearse, Indianapolis, judge.

Dr. Lucy C. Waite, of Chicago, has been admitted to the medical department of the University of Vienna on the same terms with male students. So much for waiting for the clouds of prejudice to roll by.

W. D. Howells, it is said, will write a biography of Longfellow for the "American Men of Letters Series."

ONE WRITER'S HISTORY.

Something About Wilkeson.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, April 12.—I read Frank Wilkeson's sketches in The Sun, of this city, several years before I ever met him. They were interesting to me in subject as well as style. He wrote of wild life—the people who dwelt in lonely cabins in the woods and on the plains of the west, and of the untamed people in the mountains and forests of the south. His subjects were delightfully fresh, and were treated with such forceful simplicity and warm interest that one could immediately see that the writer was one who wrote because he wanted to tell something that interested him deeply, and in no sense resembled the numberless writers who scour the earth continually for subjects to "write up" or "write down," till one wearies at the very sight of their names.

One cannot fail to see by Frank Wilkeson's literary work that he loves nature and natural people, and has no liking for shams or pretenders. His sketches are among the choicest contributions to journalistic literature, yet I doubt if many of his readers and admirers know anything about the man himself.

He was born in Buffalo, this state, and is the youngest son of Samuel Wilkeson, the journalist, and was 38 years old in March. The late civil war made a soldier of him before he was 16 years old. He ran away from home and enlisted in a battery of volunteer artillery. He served as a cannoneer in the Army of the Potomac through all the fighting from the Wilderness to the front of Petersburg; was mustered out at the end of his term of enlistment; re-enlisted in the regular army, and on the same day was promoted from the ranks to a lieutenantcy in the Fourth United States artillery.

A brevet captain in the regular army at the age of a little over 18, he resigned his commission to enter a school of mathematics, preparatory to his chosen life-work of a mining engineer. In 1867 he went into the service of the Cambria Iron company, in Pennsylvania, to qualify himself for the management of their underground property. He worked as a miner of coal and iron ore for two years. Then, on a disagreement with the Cambria owners, he accepted employment from the Northern Pacific Railroad company as a civil engineer, and for two years took part in locating surveys for that corporation's main line through the Rocky mountains in Montana, across the plains of the Columbia, down the north bank of the Columbia river, down the eastern side of Puget sound, and across the Cascade mountains by many routes. He also explored for the Northern Pacific company the eastern slope of the Rocky range, from the Deer Lodge pass to the north of the Assinaboine river, for coal, iron and copper, and hunted the east bank of the Missouri river, above Bismarck, for bituminous coal. During all this adventurous, and then most dangerous, service, he had a 1,400 acre farm in Kansas, and on it a wife and a baby. These finally pulled him out of engineering and he settled down in Kansas to raise cattle and grow wheat. Being a mighty hunter, he enlivened the terribly tame business of cattle raising with bird shooting on the prairies and elk hunting on the Rocky mountains, as well as a little prospecting for gold and silver, and much consorting with hunters and prospectors in the Medicine Bow range. He frequently wrote his experiences for The Sun, of this city, sketches that will be long and pleasantly remembered by all who read them. Finally he freed himself from the Kansas ranch by leasing it, and bought a gold placer in the Douglas mining district in Wyoming territory, in sight of the high Rabbit Ear peak, and purchased a deserted log palace on the bank of a roaring mountain stream, furnished and stocked it, and settled down with his wife and two boys to enjoy life rationally, and wash out gold in the intervals when he was not deep in the forest with his blankets and rifle. Altogether, he lived on the plains and in the Rocky mountains fourteen years. Eastern by birth and nurture, he is western in every fiber of his body.

In 1884, to get near to his father, whom he tenderly loves, and who lives in New York city, he built a house in Bridge Hampton, at the east end of Long Island. There he now resides. But he yet owns the gold placer and the log palace in the Medicine Bow mountains, and elk and deer and beaver come into his sleep, and nightly he hears the voices of the forest calling to him to come home.

Mr. Wilkeson is a man of tremendous physical force as well as strong and fine mentality. He has a large physique, a handsome head set on a neck like a massive column of brown stone, big clear eyes full of kindness, and a voice rich and deep and full of sweet tones—such a voice as no man not honest and kindly could be gifted with. He could be what is called great if he chose to figure where the world's prizes are offered. He has the force and capacity to achieve extraordinary things. He has, however, chosen to live out of the contest as much as possible. With his family, his dogs, guns and love of nature and nature's wildnesses he finds deeper joys than the strife of life affords.

He writes only when the mood seizes him, and never to order, as many unlucky souls are compelled to do. He makes a recreation rather than a profession of it. For that reason what he does write has a force and freshness that make themselves felt.

He is a pleasing talker, with a fund of rich experiences of a kind not common; but in conversation he is modest and deferential—never egotistical. With the exception of Prentice Mulford, I know no writer who loves the wilderness so well, or who has had so much experience in wild life, in the mountainous mining districts. Yet both these men have more warm sympathy with their fellow-men than one often finds in those who call themselves philanthropists. Both are thinkers on the problems that affect the welfare of humanity, and are always on the humanitarian side. Both, too, were born and brought up in the east, and both are western by nature in every particular.

Mr. Wilkeson's chirography is as neat and perfect as pen can make it. His manuscript is a joy to editors, and his private letters are models of courtesy and kindness. He expects to go to the Rocky mountains on a long trip during the coming summer, and will treat the public to some more charming pictures of wild western life.

Father Kolasinski has returned to Detroit, and the Polish church troubles are being renewed.

Josef Victor von Schoeffel, German poet, is dead.

C. F. Gunther, a Chicago broker, owns the original manuscript of Payne's "Home, Sweet Home."

Mr. Frederick Douglass will deliver his lecture on John Brown in Music Hall, Boston, next month.

Martin Irons, the head of the Missouri strikers, is sixty-four years old, an American by birth and a machinist by trade.

T. B. Aldrich, editor of the Atlantic, lives near a grave yard. He says he has excellent neighbors; they never send in any manuscript.

From a recent investigation by the court it is announced that the estate of the late Hon. Thaddeus Stevens will not realize enough to pay the numerous bequests.

F. Marion Crawford, who is writing a new story entitled "Sarracinesca" for Blackwood's Magazine, introduces Cardinal Antonelli as one of the characters. Politics are lightly treated, sentiment and society being the chief themes of the story.

Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore, pronounces the publication in newspapers of certain pious performances in the church a profanation of sacred things, and recommends the establishment of a daily paper in every large city to defend the Catholic religion against its enemies.

Count de Lessips is laughed at for being sanguine that he will live till 1889 and charter a steamer, take his whole family, and, passing through the Panama canal, return to France by way of Suez. But the real difficulty by that time may be to find a steamer that will hold his whole family.

"What is Dennis Kearney doing now?" was recently asked of a Californian. "Talking on the sand-lots every Sunday," he said. "But what does he do during the week?" "Oh, he keeps an intelligence office for persons seeking servants and servants seeking places." "Does he have any dealings with the Chinese?" "Oh, no. He sticks to his old text. The legend over his office is, 'No Chinese need apply.'"

Ex-Secretary Benjamin H. Bristow, now a leading lawyer at the New York bar, is described by a recent observer as being a "portly man, and of a kind and genial rather than dignified prgseuce. His face is fleshy and pale, his forehead high and broad, and a few straggling hairs still find root in the crown of his large and well sot head. A gray mustache and short chin whiskers keep one of his hands busy stroking them most of the time."

Alfred Krupp, the German cannon builder, owns probably the largest business in the world, dependant on one individual. The works within the town of Essen occupy more than 500 acres, half of which are under cover. According to a census taken in September, 1881, the number of hands employed by Mr. Krupp was 19,605, the members of their families 45,776, making 65,381 persons supported by his works. Mr. Krupp owns 547 iron mines in Germany. He owns four sea steamers, and there are connected with the Essen works forty-two miles of railway, employing twenty-eight locomotives and 883 cars, sixty horses, with 101 wagons, and forty miles of telegraph wires, with thirty-five stations and fifty-five Morse apparatuses. The establishment possesses a grand chemical laboratory, a photographic and lithographic atelier, a printing office with three steam and six hand presses, and a book-binding room. The establishment even runs a hotel in Essen.

The Sheldon Sensation.

SHELDON, April 11, 1886.

To the Editor of THE SENTINEL.

DEAR SIR—I noticed in your briefs of March 31, in regard to a great sensation at Sheldon. I would respectfully inform you that the sensation started in Fort Wayne, and as far as the sensation is concerned, its force was spent before it reached Sheldon and vicinity, as the writer of the brief had lived here too long for the citizens not to know and understand the nature of her designs. As far as Belzibub is concerned, he makes the bullets and gets his daughter to shoot them. Now, as far as the babe is concerned, it lies in its grave and rests in peace; and as far as its resurrection is concerned, it is a base lie and manufactured out of whole cloth.

Yours truly,
JOHN B. WOODS.

Attention Jeffersonians.

There will be a meeting of the Jeffersonian club next Monday evening at the circuit court room. All the members are asked to be present, as the future welfare of the club is to be discussed.

SCHAUMACHER, the "oatmeal king," of Akron, Ohio, came to this country very poor and got into the liquor business. He didn't like that, and began to grind oats by hand and peddle it from a hand cart. In thirty years he has built up the largest factory of the kind in the world. He is now a strong temperance man, and won't have an employe about him that drinks even beer. Most of his hundreds of workmen are Germans. He once brought a master workman from Germany at a big salary, on a two years' contract. The second day after he began work Schaumacher discovered that he drank beer. In two hours the man quit work and went back home with a check for $5,000.

WASHINGTON, April 13.—In the senate Mr. Platt took the floor on his resolution relating to the executive session. He said: "But in no sense is it a question of party politics. It is above all party questions, and is the most important question of administrative reform to which the senate could at this time devote its attention."

HOUSE.

Mr. Turner, of Georgia, called up as a privileged question the Ohio contested case of Hurd vs. Romeis. It was agreed to as the previous question and will be considered after eight hours debate. There are three reports from the committee on elections, the majority confirming Romeis, the minority declaring Hurd entitled to a seat and another minority report taking the ground that neither were duly elected.

Mr. Robertson, of Kentucky, spoke in Hurd's behalf and asserted that in precinct eight, Eighth ward, Toledo, not one of the statute laws of Ohio had been complied with. He denounced the methods which he said prevailed in Ohio elections and remarked that the tissue ballots of South Carolina and the bull dozing of Louisiana must pale into insignificence when the country learned the methods on which Ohio republican elections were arranged.

In the republican caucus last night Representative Steele was selected as Indiana's representative upon the congressional campaign committee.

The democratic congressional campaign committee will meet this evening. Congressman Ford represents Indiana.

CHOKED TO DEATH.

A Steak Lodges in a Drunken Man's Throat.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

DUBUQUE, Iowa, April 13.—John Ryan, a journeyman tailor, was choked to death with a piece of meat in his throat. He was under the influence of liquor and went to supper after the usual hour, eating alone. He was heard to fall on the floor by a boarder overhead, who came downstairs to find Ryan in the throes of death. Surgeons were summoned, but life was extinct when they arrived. A piece of beef was extracted from the dead man's throat measuring five inches long, one inch thick and two inches wide. He had evidently taken it from the plate and attempted to swallow it without cutting up or mastication. Ryan was about twenty-five years of age, and came here six years ago from New York city, where he has living two sisters and a brother.

CIVIL-SERVICE REFORM.

Civil-service reform comes hard, because the evils against, which it is aimed have been long intrenched in the body politic and can only be removed by heroic treatment. Because an abuse is of long standing, however, is no reason why it should be tolerated, and the assertion of such a principle is without rhyme or reason. Diseases which afflict the human body are not looked upon as blessings because long endured, nor should those which afflict the state be considered so. Everything which is inconsistent with the most perfect working of the body and government must be gotten rid of. Such, at least, is the belief of Mr. W. D. Murphy, of No. 319 Yandes street, Indianapolis, who has recently been cured of rheumatism of twenty-five years' standing by that great remedy, Athlophoros. Age gave the disease no charm in his eyes, and he swept it away at the first opportunity. He himself tells all about the matter in this way:

"My rheumatism dates way back about twenty-five years. I first contracted it in the war, in which I served four years and six months. After returning home from service the disease seemed to assume a periodical form. I would have at least two severe attacks every year, but even between these attacks I would suffer all the time. These attacks prevented me from getting about, and many times I could not walk or get on or off bed. They would catch me in the legs so that after standing awhile I would feel suddenly weak and in danger of falling."

"Was it during one of these attacks that you used Athlophoros?" Mr. Murphy was asked.

"Yes; that's the time and that's when it did its work for me. I saw it advertised and sent to B. Brehm, the druggist on Columbia avenue, for a bottle. It was in the afternoon I took the first dose and then at night I took another. I slept soundly that night. The next morning when I awoke I had no pain. I took a few doses more, only using about two-thirds of a bottle altogether and my rheumatism was all gone. That is over a year ago and I have only felt a little twinge of the pain since, but nothing to speak of."

"Do you know of any others who have used Athlophoros?"

"Yes. I have recommended it to many different persons. My confidence was so great in the medicine that in several instances I have bought bottles of it and given them to people, saying at the time that if it did not do its work they need not pay for it; but there is not a single case in which I did not have my money within a week. There is Mrs. Wright, an aged lady of seventy, living a few miles from here, who, after suffering from rheumatic pains for fifteen years, was entirely rid of all pain by three or four bottles of Athlophoros. I recommended another lady, who was supposed to be suffering from dyspepsia, but who in reality had neuralgia of the stomach, to try Athlophoros, and it soon cured her. My neighbor, who had a severe attack of neuralgia, his face being swollen out of all shape, was cured by a few doses. My confidence in Athlophoros is very strong, and I believe that if any one suffering with rheumatism or neuralgia will take it right it will cure ninety-nine cases out of a hundred. It is worth $100 a bottle to every sufferer from rheumatism."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us, as directed. ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 Wall Street, New York.

THE smile was neither "childlike nor bland," when nearly two-thirds of the members of congress voted against free coinage.

THE new Rembrandt, purchased at Cologne by the Belgian Government for 100,000 francs, has been placed in the Brussels Museum. It is a portrait of great simplicity of design, representing an aged housewife of the middle class, but painted with as much delicacy as boldness. It bears the genuine signature of the great master, and is dated 1656. It belongs, consequently, to the period when his genius had reached its full maturity. The male portrait already in the Brussels Museum dates from 1641, and is of much less value than the new acquisition.

SIR JOSEPH COOK, to whom Tennie C. Claflin, the sister of Victoria Woodhull, was married, is Marquis Monlserrat of the nobility of Portugal, in which country he is the possessor of a marble villa famous for the beauty of its site—at Centra, pronounced by Byron in "Childe Harold," the world's paradise. A delightful drive of twenty miles from Lisbon and you are there. The mountain is crowned by the gilded dome and graceful minarets of the king's chateau, to the left of which is the famous cork-wood convent, while the right is flanked by the ruins of a Saracenic stronghold.

THE Hungarian Count Zichy has a remarkable personal history. Losing at the age of 14 his right arm, from hunting, after a forced rest of a few months, he determined to apply himself until he could do everything as well as if he were not physically disabled. So perfectly has he succeeded that to-day he rides, drives, rows, fences, writes, serves himself in every way, is a welcome society man, and, best of all, plays the piano finely, having been a pupil of Liszt for six years. He was taught to replace the missing hand by the thumb of the left hand, and is able to make "bounds" of five and six octaves.

AN extraordinary charge was investigated by the Kingsbridge (Devon) magistrates when Alice Mitchell, a domestic servant, was charged with placing poison in a pudding intended for consumption by the pupils at a ladies' school at Paignton. It was alleged that the prisoner, who had had notice to leave, had placed some phosphorus paste or rat poison in the pudding, and on dinner being served the pudding was observed to give off phosphorus fumes, or, as some of the young ladies described it, it burst into flames. It was proved that the girl knew where the phosphorus was kept and that she had had charge of the pudding.

IF Miss Rosa Squire ever goes on a strike she will have the sympathy of all the newspapers. At present Rosa is not "killing" locomotives but saving them. The fair Rosa is station agent at Richmond Hill on the Long Island Railroad. A heavy load of stone stuck on the railway and the driver whipped up his horses, whereupon the team broke loose and ran away, leaving the wagon across the track. Rosa grasped the situation and a red flag at the same moment. She ran to the curve and waved the flag. The express succeeded in stopping twenty feet from the wagon, although it nearly jerked the heads off the passengers in doing so.

THE SENTINEL has not said a word unkindly of Mr. John Slater, township assessor-elect, but it does question the propriety, justice and wisdom of turning the affairs of his office over to Wm. Briant. His appraisement must stand for six years, and, judging by his valuation six years ago, it will be far from just and not remote from favoritism. ASSESSOR Schroeder has now a statement showing that Mr. Briant pursued a queer policy six years ago, and it is because of this fact that the leading republicans are urging Mr. Slater to make a change. THE SENTINEL asks Mr. Slater to fill the office himself, and it will assist him to make his administration a success. Mr. Briant's appointment is a mistake, and the sooner it is realized the better.

A YOUNG Swede makes a living in Boston by washing dogs. He goes from house to house in the fashionable quarters, and for fifty cents or seventy-five, according to the size of the dog, gives the pets thorough baths. It is said that the plan was the thought of a well-known charitable woman. She wanted to help the young fellow, who was out of work, and interested her friends in the scheme, and now he has about all the dog-washing he can attend to.

M. CHARLES GIRARD, chemist, of Paris, recently amused himself by investigation of the ingredients of a beautiful red currant jelly, charmingly put up for export to the United States. There was not an atom of fruit in the mass, as was demonstrated by the adding to it of methylated alcohol, which would have turned it green had it contained any fruit acid. It was found to consist of gelatine, sweetened with glycerine residue, colored with picbsine (a poisonous mineral extract), and flavored with no one knows what. A great many people in this country imagine no currant jelly is so good as that which is imported from France.

ONE of those heroines of whom the world hears but little lives near Lexington, Ga. Her name is Sallie Hansford. Her husband has been bedridden with rheumatism for nine years, and she has had a family of four children—two boys and two girls—to support. Last year she bought one hundred and seven acres of land, much of it original forest, and with the aid of her two boys, fourteen and fifteen years old, cleared five acres. She cut down the trees, rolled the logs together, split the rails, built the fence, and burned the brush with their help, and raised last year nine bales of cotton, also corn and peas enough for her own use, and paid her rent, her store account, and forty dollars on her land. She has bought her meat for this year and paid for it. In addition to this, she has done the cooking, and gone to market with eggs and chickens.

THREE REASONS

Why every one needs, and should take Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring:—

1st: Because the system is now in its greatest need. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives strength.

2d: Because the blood is sluggish and impure. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies.

3d: Because, from the above facts, Hood's Sarsaparilla will do a greater amount of good now than any other time. Take it now.

The dead body of a man was found yesterday near the Fort Wayne railroad track at Plymouth, Indiana, who from a telegram found in his pocket is supposed to have been George McClary.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferers at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

OLD AGE.

The Means of Prolonging Life After Middle Age.

(From the Wilmington, Del., "Sunday")

An eminent London physician, John Gardner, M. D., whose specialty is diseases of the aged, has written a work on his favorite topic, and the result of his research is, that the only sure and abiding strength which old age receives is a medical treatment, with pure whisky. Quoting from his work, the doctor says: "Elderly persons who in winter suffer from cold feet, and find artificial heat, applied externally fails to afford relief, may with undoubted propriety and advantage take whisky and hot water on going to bed. If a headache or foul tongue follows, the inference is, the spirit was impure, probably containing fusel oil. A very slight trace of this noxious ingredient, in spirits, will, in some constitutions, produce headache—as accurate a test of impurity as chemistry can employ. On the subject of stimulants and their medicinal use when pure, Dr. Gardner further says: "The advocates of total abstinence equally fail to produce evidence in support of their opinion, that all stimulants are inimical to health and longevity. Science, common sense, Holy Scriptures and all experience, testify to the benefits to be derived. "The Every Saturday" of Baltimore, Md., publishes an interview, with the few remaining veterans, who were the defenders of the city in 1812, and who, though they have advanced far into the vale of years, enjoy good health, for which, each in turn, gave a potent reason. This little band of heroes, comprised of Mr. John C. Morford, aged 89 years, George Bose, 92; Samuel Jennings, 89; John Poddecord, 90; Nathaniel Watts 90, were visited at their separate homes, and for the many ills and infirmities to which age is subjected, each had used Duffy's pure malt whiskey medicinally, and each acknowledged its superior merits and the benefits they had derived from its use. From these evidences the reporter moralizes thus: "that the proof was positive that they had prolonged their lives by proper attention to nature's laws, and that the claim of the prohibitionists that stimulants are not conducive to longevity, had fallen to the ground."

THE Baptists of Georgia are rejoicing over their capture of Chief Justice O. A. Lochrane, for years an Episcopalian. He is an active prohibitionist, and was therefore thrown much in the society of the Rev. Dr. J. B. Hawthorne, a Baptist pulpit orator of local fame. After the election which resulted in thorough victory for the prohibitionists, the preacher went with the Judge to his home, where wine casks and bottles were rolled out to the streets and emptied. In a few days Judge Lochrane will be immersed.

Mr. Henry Mylander, a well known tailor of Baltimore, writes: "I have been suffering for some time with a severe pain in my back, from which I was unable to obtain relief. I gave Salvation Oil a trial and less than a bottle entirely cured me. I do not hesitate to pronounce it a most excellent liniment."

In the investigation of the Jeffersonville levee appropriation scandal, O. O. Stealey, Speaker Carlisle's clerk, at the time of the incident a house committee clerk, completely vindicated himself from all blamable connection with the job. It seems that the money was paid to E. N. Hill, a Washington attorney, by Warder, but that Hill ever did anything for the money is not clear. This item will not find a place in the columns of many of the republican organs. But all of them published the scandal on Stealey in full.

DR. A. C. HOXSIE'S CERTAIN CROUP CURE.—This preparation, a private and original prescription, was extensively used in an unlimited practice for many years, with perfect success by the late A. C. Having thoroughly tested and tried this remedy, he had no hesitation in pronouncing it positive, swift and sure to cure Croup in its most aggravated form, when administered promptly and according to directions. Its powerful and direct effect upon the diseased mucous membrane, render it particularly invaluable to those living at a distance from a physician—as it is seldom necessary to call in professional aid, if the "Certain Croup Cure" is near at hand. While powerful and effectual, it contains no opium in any form, nor any drug which can have a deleterious or injurious effect upon the system. The most delicate infant may take it, as directed, with perfect safty. Price $1.00. For sale by all first class druggists, wholesale and retail. dec23-eodawâm

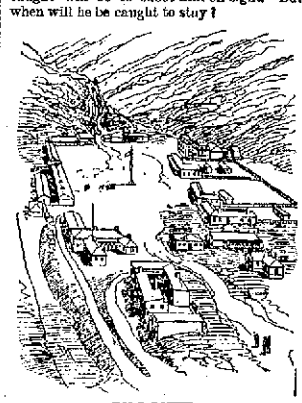
FORT BOWIE, ARIZONA.

The Station to Which Cabt. Crawford's Body was Brought.

A place of considerable importance this old fort is becoming latterly. It is from this point that news of the hostile Indians is sent to Washington, when any news arrives that can be depended on for two days at a time. One day Geronimo is captured, the next day he escapes. Then he is recaptured, and, presto! next day he is gone again.

Here at this fort, which you see in the picture, he promised faithfully to appear and deliver himself up to the United States authorities and thereafter keep the peace. Instead of doing so, he fled to the mountains as fast as he and a few trusty braves could get away, considering that they were loaded down with 200 rounds of ammunition each. It was the third time Geronimo had broken his solemn promise to the United States government. He is as treacherous as a weasel. The safest way to dispose of him next time he is caught will be to shoot him on sight. But when will he be caught to stay?



FORT BOWIE.

This old fort, to which bravo Capt. Crawford's body was brought by slow, sad marches, has a history of its own. The story dates as far back as the second year of the late civil war. In July, 1862, Gen. Carleton camped here on his way east to the war, with a body of California volunteers. He stopped here because water was struck at this spot. Water was more precious than gold on those long desert marches. It was necessary to guard the springs from the Apaches, in order to keep the route of travel open. So a company of soldiers was left, and the place was named Fort Bowie.

There was not a recommendation to the spot except that springs of fresh water were there. It was down in the heart of a savage, desolate mountain region. The mountains slope to the north. Their sides are covered with sage brush and cactus, and the ground is wild and broken with rocks.

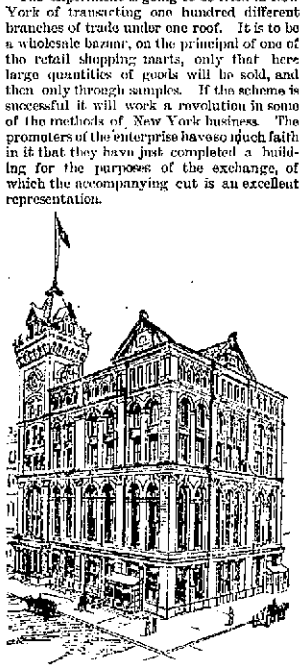
The place is on the military route from Tucson to Santa Fe. The soil is like much of the rest of the country hereabouts, only barren from want of irrigation. As that is being accomplished the region of what the old geographies called the Great American Desert is gradually being transformed into grain fields and gardens. They say the word Arizona means "arid zone."

Bowie is the oldest garrisoned fort in Arizona. At the outbreak of the war the other military stations were abandoned, and when Gen. Carleton left the little company of California volunteers at this place in 1862 there was not a United States soldier in the territory. The Apache Indians were as hostile to the government then as they are now, and when they saw the other forts abandoned it is said they fancied they had conquered the United States. It is to be hoped Geronimo's repented escapes will not incline them to the same opinion now.

Fort Bowie has been greatly improved in the last few years.

The New York Mercantile Exchange.

The experiment is going to be tried in New York of transacting one hundred different branches of trade under one roof. It is to be a wholesale bazaar, on the principal of one of the retail shopping marts, only that here large quantities of goods will be sold, and then only through samples. If the scheme is successful it will work a revolution in some of the methods of New York business. The promoters of the enterprise have so much faith in it that they have just completed a building for the purposes of the exchange, of which the accompanying cut is an excellent representation.



THE EXCHANGE BUILDING.

April 7, was the day set apart for the dedication of this building. It is situated on the corner of Hudson and Harrison streets in the midst of the wholesale grocery and produce district.

This exchange, though the youngest, promises to be the liveliest of them all. It was organized in 1873 by a few dealers in dairy products; it now numbers some 800 members. Its success is largely due to the catholic spirit of its governing committee. They realize that this is the age of combination and co-operation and consolidation, and they hope to have the sellers of butter and beets, of dry goods and drugs, as well as grocers meet together on the same floor for barter and exchange and the prices which rule here will likely rule the country.

A Red Flag Before a Mad Bull.

I can hardly understand how the Morgan syndicate are gifted with so little foresight and common sense as to attempt to put up the price of coal in the face of thousand taken by the labor party, more especially when they show such enormous power. Some weeks ago I ventured to point out to these capitalists that labor was beginning to assert its power, and yet I find that a combination, representing a capital of over $600,000,000, are banded together with a view to advancing the price of one of the necessities of life. It looks as if they were shaking a red flag before a mad bull, and if ever the bull does got among them there will be a lively rattling of old bones.—Financier in Town Topics.

REV. W. H. MILBURN.

The Doughty Congressional Chaplain Who Made the Famous Prayer.

Rev. W. H. Milburn has gone and done it. He is only less of a sensation than "Ostler Joe" was last week.

The gentleman is the chaplain of the United States house of representatives at Washington. He is known the country over as "the blind preacher," from having quite lost the sight of one eye, and almost that of the other, when he was a boy.

REV. W. H. MILBURN.

Blindness did not prevent him from studying for the ministry as soon as he was old enough, however.

The future chaplain was born in Philadelphia in 1823. When only 20 years old he was admitted as a preacher in the Methodist Episcopal church. He was a famous itinerant through the southern states. It is said that he traveled in that capacity over 200,000 miles. Nor is the present his first experience even as chaplain of the house of representatives. He filled that office thirty years ago under Buchanan. After his term of service was over there he went to England and lectured with great success. He is an eloquent and attractive speaker. The fact of his blindness adds an interest which has a touch of romance to his ministerial labors.

Rev. Mr. Milburn is also well known as a writer, having published several books, among them "Rifle, Ax and Saddlebags," and "Pioneers, Preachers and People of the Mississippi Valley."

He is accustomed to doing unusual things, as also to taking his own head for things. Once he took it into his head that he would not be a Methodist preacher any more. Then he had himself confirmed in the Episcopal church. But whether there was not enough emotional religion in the Episcopal fold, or for some other reason, he was not satisfied there and returned to the Methodist denomination in 1872.

As chaplain of the house, he is accustomed to inform the Almighty of the sins of the American people in the most vigorous and unmistakable manner. The prayer which has stirred up so much comment was one in which he prayed the Lord to rid the land of brokers and stock gamblers and other people who do not earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

Chaplain Milburn is now physically, although in his 64th year, as strong and robust as most men of 30, and his intellect is of more than common power. He can give more accurate descriptions of Westminster Abbey, Cologne Cathedral, Notre Dame and other Old World monuments he has visited than can the majority of those persons who have not been dependent on other people's eyes and on their sense of touch. He can describe the rocky outlines and mountainous declivities of the Sierras and of the Rocky mountains, and the picturesque beauties of the Blue Ridge with a force and vigor combined with accuracy rarely equalled, even by writers who still retain their sight, while he has been blind since he was 5 years old.

The reverend gentleman is of tall and commanding presence. Broad chested and inclined to stoutness, he is the picture of health. A full, untrimmed gray beard floats way down his vest, while his black hair, streaked with silver, is brushed back from his high forhead and hangs in bushy luxuriance upon the collar of his clerical coat. His strongly-marked features bear a kindly expression, and are every now and then lit up by a pleasant smile. While talking he fixes his eyes upon the person whom he is addressing and the sightless orbs appear to look straight into the soul of his listener. He is a most entertaining talker, and one of his favorite hobbies is the subject of health and its promotion. He is a very Jew in his selection of food, positively eschewing all hog meats, and he treats himself to a regular course of currycomb and rough towel, cold water, oil and sunbaths every morning. As he himself says, he is one of the best groomed men in the country.

My daughter was cured by your valuable medicine, Athlophoros, after trying many other remedies with no relief. We have recommended it in several cases where it has made remarkable cures. William J. Mosher, 133 Park street, Detroit, Mich.

A double-headed calf with two distinct and perfectly formed skulls and necks was born on the farm of a Mr. Fritchey in Pow Pow township, Wabash county. The body of the animal in nowise differs from that of an ordinary calf. The life of the brute cannot be preserved.

SCOTT'S EMULSION OF PURE Cod Liver Oil, With Hypophosphites, Especially Desirable for Children.

A lady physician at the Child's Hospital, at Albany, N. Y., says: "We have been using Scott's Emulsion with great success, nearly all of our patients are suffering from bone diseases and our physicians find it very beneficial."

Gottlieb Wuterich, a German peanut vender of Lafayette, committed suicide Thursday, by throwing himself in front of a Wabash, St. Louis and Pacific switch engine, causing instant death. Wuterich was led to the act by the fatal sickness of his only daughter, who lived with him. He had been of unsound mind for many years past.

REV. H. B. ERRELI, of Pavilion, N. Y., says of Gilmore's Aromatic Wine: "I believe it to be a most desirable remedy to be placed in every family."

WILLIS L. CULVER, of Pavilion, N. Y., says that Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir cured him of a long standing throat and lung trouble.

LADIES, Use Gilmore's Aromatic Wines for nervousness and sleeplessness.

CONFINED TO THE BED FOUR MONTHS, and almost blind, and cured by one box of Gilmore's Neuralgia cure.

WHAT WILL CURE THROAT AND LUNG TROUBLES? Gilmore's Magnetic Elixir.

Bernard Macauley.

Many an old theatre goer will hear with a melancholy feeling of the death of this well known actor. A man of splendid physique, he ought to have been in his prime, for he was not as old as Henry Irving or Edwin Booth. But he early contracted a passion for drink, which shortened his days at last. Only for this he would have reached a high place among interpreters of the drama. As it was, he won distinction. He died of Bright's disease at St. Vincent's hospital, New York city.

BERNARD MACAULEY.

Bernard Macauley was born in New York city in 1837. In 1864 he appeared in that city as Armand Duval to Matilda Heron's Camille. He was a handsome young man, with a rich voice and a brilliant eye. He went west and became a theatre manager. He had theatres in Cincinnati and Louisville. In those cities he was very popular, as man, manager and actor. He played himself the leading male roles in the stock companies he managed. He played Macbeth to Charlotte Cushman's Lady Macbeth at her last appearance in Cincinnati before her death, during the tour she made after she became afflicted with the cancer that put an end to her life. Macauley did not suffer even in comparison with Charlotte Cushman.

Afterwards he fell into difficulties and lost his property. The last play of any note that he appeared in was "The Messenger from Jarvis Section," with which he went on the road for several years. His wife, who survives him, was Rachel Johnson, herself a talented actress.

There was great excitement all over the town of New Haven. A fellow had stolen a ham. When the citizens learned of this horrible crime about a dozen of them mounted on horseback and pursued the thief. When they got him the stranger had swallowed the ham, so they had to let him go on account of the missing evidence.

"Frank Erlenbach and Adolph Lemmerman, of this city, went to Fort Wayne Sunday noon, intending to return on the evening train, but unfortunately they struck the wrong street and were unable to find the Wabash depot until this morning, when they were kindly cared for and helped on the train," says the Bluffton Herald.

If the press comments on "Zozo" are a proper indication, the merits of the drama are worthy of praise. The Baltimore American says: "The piece is quite different from the old style, inasmuch as there is no ballet and no variety specialities. It is singularly clean, highly amusing, exceedingly beautiful and quite interesting, while the scenery and paraphernalia excels any similar entertainment in Baltimore."

City Clerk Rockhill has granted permits to Roman Zoeller, who will build a two story brick building on lot No. 3 Johnson's addition at a cost of $3,000; to August Koenig, permission to remove a frame house from lot 12 Ewing's addition; to Fred Helling, who will put up an addition to his house on lot 32 Hanna's addition, at a cost of $50; to Conrad Buesking, who will erect an addition to his store, on lot 235 Lewis' addition, at a cost of $100.

A great deal depends on whether or not the Nickel Plate will enter the passenger department of the Central Traffic association at the meeting to be held in Chicago Thursday. Should the Nickel Plate join there is a possibility of maintaining present rates. If it should not, the present rates, already in a strained condition, would not last a week.

J. H. Soule, editor of the Washington Gazette, replies to Mrs. S. C. Hoffman, of the postoffice, who sought information for the widows of soldiers, who are benefitted by the law recently enacted in congress. Mr. Soules says: "There is nothing for you to do to get the increase allowed under the new law. The pension agent will pay you $12 per month from March 19, 1886, without any application being required. When you receive your next check the amount of the increase will be included"

Mattie Vickers drew an audience which nearly filled the Academy last night. They laughed till they were hoarse at the excrutintingly funny performance and voted it one of the best of its kind ever seen in Fort Wayne. As a play "Jacquine" does not amount to much, but it offers every advantage in which Miss Vickers, Charley Rogers and Thomas J. Ryan can show their specialties and this they do to the great satisfaction of the audience. "Jacquine" will be repeated to-night and at both performance to-morrow, which closes the engagement,

Miss Julia Nelson, the accomplished daughter of Sheriff DeGroff Nelson, returned to-day from Cincinnati, where she visited relatives.

The democrats are arranging for the city election and mean business. Democrats will be asked to show their colors, as no more defeats must occur.

Miss Minnie Maddern needs not a column of praise. She is known, and the simple announcement that she is coming will pack the Temple to-morrow night.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Anderson to-day celebrated the fifty-eighth anniversary of their marriage. The venerable and esteemed people are at home to their friends, and congratulations pour in on them.

Miss Maggie Graney will be buried to-morrow morning from the Cathedral at 9 o'clock. The funeral will leave her home, 65 Williams street, at 8:30. Friends of the family are invited to attend.

A prominent physician remarked that so long as people continued to throw slop in the alleys and in the streets, we would have considerable sickness. Something should be done by the city council to put a stop to throwing slop in the alleys and streets.

MRS. MANIER.

Another Respected Resident Gone.

Mrs. Margaret Manier died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Joseph Perry No. 2 Oak street, at 2 o'clock, Monday afternoon, April 12. She had been confined to her room since last December. Mrs. Manier is better known by our younger citizens as Grandma Pollette. She was born in Loraine, France, in the Bourg of Fong, in the department of Meurthe, in the year A. D. 1816. She emigrated thence to America with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Poirson, who long since died in this county, and arrived at Buffalo in the year 1832. There she married Hypolite Manier. The newly married couple immediately took passage for Toledo, and from thence walked to Fort Wayne, arriving here in 1833. They entered the service of the late Chief Richardville. After several years service on the canal and other public improvements, Mr. Manier pursued farming for several years in Lake township. In 1856 they removed to Fort Wayne and established a boarding house on East Columbia street, where Mr. Manier died in 1870. Since then Mrs. Manier has resided among her several children, to whom she was deeply attached, and the attachment was warmly reciprocated. There survive her seven children; two sons, Mr. Victor Manier, of Peoria, Ill., and Mr. Frank Manier; and five daughters, Mrs. Joseph Langard, Mrs. F. Delgrange, Mrs. Rudolph Reffelt, Mrs. Joseph Perry and Mrs. F. Casso. Mrs. Manier leaves a considerable estate.

Mrs. Manier leaves forty grand children and eight great grand children. The funeral occurs to-morrow at 10 o'clock from the Cathedral.

SAVED ITS LIFE.

An Infant Rescued From a Pest House Death.

Some months ago when Mrs. Jordan, of the Sixth ward, was stricken with small pox, she was hurried to the pest house with her babe in her arms. The woman realized death awaited her, but a mother's love was strong even then and she clung to her child until fever dethroned her reason. Mrs. Dr. A. J. Rauch, who lives north of the poor house, took the little one from its dead mother's arms, nursed it through a severe attack of varioloid and has just given the babe to Mrs. Jeremiah Mudge, of DeWald street, well and dimple-faced. Mrs. Rauch did this unostentatious work of charity unpaid and unheard of till now.

FOR EDUCATION.

A High Tribute to Trustee Gaffney.

An institute of the Wayne township teachers was held at school house No. 4 on Saturday, April 10. Trustee Gaffney took the chair and introduced Trustee-elect H. Hilbrecht. C. Methley was secretary and Misses Kelsey and Burgess and Messrs. Philley and Methley committee on resolutions.

Mr. Philley took the uses of the infinitive and participle in a very able manner. Miss Burgess followed with a class in grammar, which was very good, and Miss Emma Kelsey read an interesting essay on the nervous system.

At the afternoon session C. Methley took the subject of "Percentage." Miss Eliza Gaffney, teacher of the school, had a class of her scholars in reading, and they acquitted themselves admirably. Miss Burgess read a very learned essay on language, and Mr. T. Greer, jr., explained the system of government surveys in a satisfactory manner.

Good music, singing and recitations helped to enliven the occasion. Songs by Mr. Thomas, Mrs. Rogers and families were specially noticeable, as were recitations by Miss Addie Gaffney and several of the scholars. There was a large attendance, among whom were Trustee-elect Hilbrecht, Mr. Thomas Greer, sr., Mr. Herman Gerke, Mr. McMaken and others.

Mr. Gaffney addressed the teachers for the last time during his term as trustee, and on motion of Mr. Philley it was resolved to hand his address to the papers for publication. He was followed by Mr. Hilbrecht, who said he trusted the teachers would act in harmony with him for the benefit of the schools.

The following resolutions were then passed:

WHEREAS, The intimate relations held during the past four years between Mr. Gaffney and the teachers of Wayne township, makes it fitting that he record our appreciation of him; therefore,

Resolved, That the wisdom and ability which he has exercised in aid of our work by counsel, service and compensation will be held in grateful remembrance.

It was decided to hold another institute at district No. 6 in four weeks. The meeting then adjourned.

ANTI-KALSOMINE.

We are now the agents for the only permanent wall finish Anti-Kalsomine. It covers as well as kalsomine, need never be washed to be renewed; will take a hundred coats if necessary, without cracking, chalking or peeling off. It is sanitary in its composition, kalsomine is not. It is also an excellent primer for outside as well as inside work; it fills the pores of the wood better than white lead, ochre or any known pigment; makes a more solid surface, is much cheaper than ocher or lead, and is the best covering for walls known. Try it and be convinced.

We have also a large stock of wall paper patterns, ceiling decorations and borders, mixed paints, brushes, artists materials, etc. Give us a call at the paint and paper store of Wilding & Son, 191 Calhoun street. 13-1m

THE BITTERS.

Meyer Bros. & Co. Explain Their Position.

Editor of SENTINEL:

DEAR SIR:—Our Mr. J. F. W. Meyer has mailed us a copy of your paper of the 8th inst. in which he has marked an item in your city column which reads as follows: "Suit has been entered by the Brown Chemical company, of Baltimore, Md., against Meyer Bros. & Co., of St. Louis, for imitating the Brown's Iron Bitters. The Meyer Bros. & Co's. firm sell the preparation as Brown's Iron Tonic, hence the prosecution." While we do not contemplate to go into any newspaper controversy on this subject, but as Fort Wayne is our old home we should be sorry to have our reputation injured, and any remarks that would indicate that our emigration from there should have degenerated us into the business of counterfeiting, is a most serious matter to us, hence we feel that we are justified in denying the allegations above made.

In an evening paper of this city, also of the 8th inst., a dispatch is published dated on the 7th at Baltimore, which states among other things that "Meyer Bros. & Co., the well known druggists of St. Louis, are dealing in Brown's Iron Tonic, which, it is claimed, is an imitation of Brown's Iron Bitters." Thus it would appear that the Brown Chemical company is using the associated press reporter to advertise all over the country that they have sued Meyer Bros. & Co., and it is evident to us that the Brown Chemical company have adopted this plan as the cheapest to advertise their firm and thus cheat the newspapers. Brown's Iron Tonic is manufactured in Little Rock, Arkansas, by a firm which stands high in point of character, by the name of Lincoln & Brown, and there is no more appearance or indications of being an imitation than Brown's Iron Bitters is an imitation of Hostetter's Bitters.

We hope that the Brown Chemical company will use the associated press as freely when the suit is decided as it does now to make it known that we are being prosecuted for selling Brown's Iron tonic. Respectfully yours,

MEYER BROS. & Co.

Yes, I heard Patti, of course I did, but the public don't know what cures her colds when she wets her little slippers. It is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Will take place

What

Does it

Profit

A Man?

What does it profit you to buy some unknown and untried make of carpet, when it costs you fully as much as makes of carpets of established reputation and well known wearing qualities, which can be had, in most elegant variety, at our establishment?

What does it profit you to be asked $1 a yard for an 85c carpet, and spend a couple of hours "beating down" one of these half a dozen priced merchants to 90c? Wouldn't it be pleasanter, wouldn't it be cheaper to save five cents a yard and buy it of us, where you know, that under the one-price system, you always get the lowest possible price at once?

What does it profit you to buy a parlor suit away from home and pay $100 for a poorer made article than we would sell you at $65 to $75?

On general principles you ought to buy your goods at home, and thus assist in building up your own city; but personally we have no such favors to ask. If you can buy good furniture or carpets anywhere in the United States of America, cheaper than we will sell them, you are at liberty to do so. More than that, if we cannot sell them to you less than you can purchase them elsewhere, we do not ask your patronage.

But you should not forget that as we sell only the best made and most reliable goods, we cannot and will not compete with the shoddy stuff with which the markets of the country are at present glutted.
